SGW Security Consulting at the ISNR Exhibition & Conference in Abu Dhabi

SGW has recently opened an office in the UAE to provide British expertise in security and fire risk management, command and control, public space surveillance, and counter terrorist services to clients across the GCC region. To reinforce its commitment to promoting security consulting excellence in the Middle East, SGW will be at the ISNR Exhibition & Conference in Abu Dhabi from 1st to 3rd March.

On stand 2040, SGW is demonstrating NORMAN (National Operational Requirement Mannequin), the recently launched portable Test Target which sets a new standard for optimising CCTV systems performance. NORMAN incorporates several new design features including a full colour graphic and accurately sized motor vehicle licence plates. These can be adapted for use in different regions of the world by substituting local car registration plates and facial features from other ethnic groups.

SGW's team of highly experienced fire, security and blast engineers, project professionals and training tutors provide support and advice on all aspects of security and life safety for border control, critical national infrastructure, transportation and the built environment and will be on hand to help with any enquiries.
